The DPO may, or may not, be a member of staff. The DPO has responsibilities set out in the GDPR – guidance may be found in the Information Governance Alliance’s guidance ‘The GDPR Data Protection Officer’ at <https://www.digital.nhs.uk/article/1414/General-Data-Protection-Regulation-guidance>. The DPO should advise you on your obligations under the GDPR and should have expert knowledge of data protection law. You may want to appoint a DPO even if you are not required to do so.
